

EDUCATIONAL TEAM

The Master's courses were designed in a two-year continuum, by a team of French, British and Australian teachers, to ensure the coherence of the educational project.

They will be provided in Paris, London and Sydney by academics and legal practitioners working in close collaboration with programme leaders and guidelines of the steering committee.

Philippe Corruble, HEC graduate and Doctor in Law, is Professor at the Catholic University of Paris where he teaches European competition law, having taught this subject at HEC Paris and in various foreign universities, notably in Saint Gall (CH). He received the Vernimmen Prize awarded to the best professor of HEC. Along with his academic activities, he worked at the DG Competition of the European Commission and in various international law firms, in Paris and Brussels. As a lawyer, he currently practices in the international law firm STREAM.

Dr Thompson has enjoyed a wide and varied career in law with experience in property, commercial, international, constitutional, criminal and human rights law. He worked for 11 years in Auckland in commercial and property law including 6 years as a partner with Fortune Manning. Since returning to Australia in 2011, he has been appointed as professor and associate dean at the university of Notre Dame Australia's Sydney school of Law where he teaches constitutional law, law and religion, evidence and legal history, but he retains an interest in legal practice.

Aurelien Portuese is an expert in competition law & economics and research on application of antitrust rules to the digital economy. Doctor in law from the University of Paris II Pantheon-Assas, Aurelien Portuese is Senior Lecturer at the St Mary's Law School of St Mary's University Twickenham London. French qualified lawyer (Paris Bar), he has published extensively on competition law, EU law, and more generally law & economics. Affiliated scholar at the International Center for Law & Economics, Aurelien teaches EU law, competition law, international economic law and he is currently working on a research project on "Antitrust populism".

Arnaud de Nanteuil is Professor of International Law at the Paris Est Créteil University (Paris 12) and Associate Professor at the Catholic Institute of Paris. He teaches mainly public and economic international law. He is the author of the only French textbook devoted exclusively to international investment law, which has been awarded by the Institut de France and he is also the author of a large number of contributions in this field. He also advises on arbitration and investment law, for private or state entities.

Opi Outhwaite is Senior Lecturer in Law at St Mary's University. Opi's main teaching and research interests are centered around international law and governance particularly with reference to the environment, human rights and international business operations. She has undertaken research as part of an international collaboration to develop the Electronics Watch model for improving labour conditions in the global electronics supply chain. She is co-editor of the IUCN Academy of Environmental Law Journal. Opi is in charge of the Master of Globalization, Law & Justice and International Affairs and Ethical Challenges.

Pierre Kirch is a partner in the litigation department of the multinational law firm Paul Hastings (Paris and Brussels Bars). His practice has focused on competition law but has also spanned the broad range of corporate/M&A, and commercial litigation/arbitration international disciplines. In recent years, and on a pro bono basis, he has litigated, on behalf of the London-based NGO ClientEarth, before the European Courts in Luxembourg. In the area of freedom of expression, for the Paris-based NGO Reporters without Borders and again on a pro bono basis, he directed a team of 70 lawyers which drafted, the «Defense Handbook for Journalists and Bloggers» (winner of the Thomson Reuters Foundation Trustlaw Collaboration Award 2015).

Dr Greg Walsh Greg Walsh was educated at the Australian National University where he completed a combined bachelor of Laws/Science degree and a graduate diploma in Legal practice. He completed a master of Laws degree at the University of Sydney and a doctor of Philosophy degree at Curtin University. He has lectured at Western Sydney University and the University of New South Wales. Greg has worked in various legal roles in Australia and overseas, including working for the office of the director of public prosecutions, the medical negligence department of Maurice Blackburn lawyers, and the office of the United Nations high commissioner for human rights.

Dr Peter Williams Prior to joining UNSW in 1993, Peter worked for 14 years in the private and public sectors, including the planning and urban research consultancy firm plant location international (Australia) PTY limited, the land commission of NSW, National Parks and Wildlife service, the land and environment court and the department of mineral resources. Grégoire assists his clients on strategic planning topics related to transfer pricing, negotiation of advance price agreements, transfer pricing documentation, and defense in the event of a tax audit. His experiences cover many industrial sectors (pharmacy, industry, financial services...).

STEERING COMMITTEE OF THE MASTER

To ensure the link with the professional world of International Business Law, the Master has a Steering Committee, composed of Lawyers, Corporate Lawyers, Members of Authority or French or International Jurisdictions. The committee validates the pedagogical orientations of the Master. It assists the Faculty and the students of the Master's degree, in particular by promoting students' contacts with legal professionals and their familiarisation with the practice of business.
